Call for Presentations

Transform your ideas, best practices and outcomes into a presentation at the Forum on Pennsylvania's Children. Given by professionals working with families and children across many sectors, presentations are meant to encourage dialogue, spark collaboration and drive new solutions to our shared goal of healing childhood trauma.

What is FPaC?

The Forum on Pennsylvania's Children (FPaC) is a one-day event that brings together professionals concerned about preventing and healing childhood trauma. Known for its high-energy, informal atmosphere with an emphasis on connection, attendees learn through morning and afternoon multidisciplinary workshops, featured speakers and facilitated interactions with a cross-sector audience. FPaC promotes exploring ways to work together and breaking down barriers for families struggling to navigate various systems. Attendees return to their communities with new knowledge and connections and inspiration to fuel their efforts toward preventing and healing trauma on behalf of children and families.

The planning committee is seeking presentations for the third annual Forum on Pennsylvania's Children.

When: Thursday, December 5, 2024

Where: Best Western Premier, 800 East Park Dr., Harrisburg, PA.

Proposal deadline: Friday, August 9, 2024

The planning committee is seeking to fill a limited number of workshop spaces, so don't delay! We want to hear from anyone interested in sharing their or their organization's experiences, lessons learned, innovations, collaborative efforts, prevention strategies and more. We are looking for sessions that:

- are trauma-informed,
- will allow for high level skill-building,
- appeal to a cross-sector audience,
- address collaboration, and
- potentially offer an innovative or new perspective on the subject matter being proposed.

For more information about FPaC, details about selection criteria and to submit a proposal, visit vocetogether.org.

Proposals must be received by Friday, August 9. Presenters will be notified by email by Friday, September 6.
